Changes in Rules and Policies

Read details on Change in Rules and Policies.

All faculty listings are for full time tenure track or tenured employees.

Although every effort has been made to assure the accuracy of the information in this catalog, students and others who use this catalog should note that laws, rules, and policies change from time to time and that these changes may alter the information contained in this publication. Changes may come in the form of statutes enacted by the Legislature, rules and policies adopted by the Board of Trustees of the California State University, by the Chancellor or designee of the California State University or by the President or designee of the institution. Further, it is not possible in a publication of this size to include all of the rules, policies and other information which pertain to the student, the institution, and the California State University. More current or complete information may be obtained from the appropriate department, school or administrative office.

Nothing in this catalog shall be construed as, operate as, or have the effect of an abridgment or a limitation of any rights, powers, or privileges of the Board of Trustees of the California State University, the Chancellor of the California State University, or the President of the campus. The Trustees, the Chancellor, and the President are authorized by law to adopt, amend or repeal rules and policies which apply to students. This catalog does not constitute a contract between the student and the institution or the California State University. The relationship of the student and the institution is one governed by statute, rules, and policy adopted by the Legislature, the Trustees, the Chancellor, the President and their duly authorized designees.

"A Digital Tomorrow," the theme for this catalog cover, appropriately reflects the futuristic vision most of us have of the new millennium. In the year 2000 we envision a world full of the latest technological advances bringing us automation and comforts only read about in science fiction. Already, photo albums are being replaced by digital images on compact disks and home computers are organizing our lives in ways never thought of before.

For this design, I began with a dark background and illuminated the images that represent technology. I chose a photo of the CLA building taken from the inside at night. I then designed all the graphic elements to radiate from a focal point within, creating a dynamic movement all in the same direction, indicative of a leap into a new millennium.

All the diverse technical circles and lines share this common purpose, much as the diverse students of this university share a common goal, while being members of a society striving to take us into a future of tremendous technical advances. The photograph, faded into the back cover as a digital outline, illustrates how the technology of tomorrow is becoming more and more real everyday. The intent of the overall layout is to illustrate how our university is the road to this bright future in the year 2000.

President's Message

Welcome to Cal Poly Pomona! This 1999-2001 university catalog provides a look at our campus—its people, its programs and its promise to you and your future.

People are our number one resource at Cal Poly Pomona. We are a diverse community of faculty, staff and administrators who are committed to providing students with the highest quality of education possible and ensuring that they are superbly prepared to continue on to graduate studies or to enter the work world. This commitment has been translated many times into reality: many of our graduates now enjoy rewarding academic and professional careers that began here at Cal Poly Pomona.

Programs refer to the wide range of academic programs available to students. Many of these are nationally distinguished, thanks to the dedication of the faculty, staff, administrators and students who have been here to date. Our academics are rigorous, to be sure—but there's more than academic theory at this university. Our graduates not only have learned theory, but also know how to put it into practice. This practical learn-by-doing approach to education has been a distinguishing hallmark of Cal Poly Pomona since its inception. It's something we're proud of and to which we remain committed.

Promise is what you get when you enroll at Cal Poly Pomona. A promise to provide you with the opportunities you need to fulfill your educational program, and to stretch that program into the practical so it can work for you in the real world. A promise to provide you with a healthy, enjoyable living environment to balance the hard work you will experience during your college years. A promise to share the unique aspects of Cal Poly Pomona—from our rich heritage to our many educational and business opportunities with the local community—providing you with an educational experience that nurtures the whole you. Finally, a promise to remain committed to you, our student, for the years beyond those you spend on campus. As a graduate who joins the work force and even becomes a leader in the community, you are an “ambassador” for the university, and your good works speak best and loudest about the potential benefit Cal Poly Pomona can have for any student's future.

I invite you to join the many students who have already chosen Cal Poly Pomona and its people, programs and promise. Our commitment to you as a student is a commitment to the future and one from which we can all benefit.

Sincerely,
