Dear CLASS Colleagues,

I am thrilled to finally be here on campus and joining the leadership team of the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences! There is no better time, no more important time, to be working at a California State University dedicated to increasing access, providing meaningful educational experiences, and serving a diverse community.

I want to thank Associate Dean David Horner and Dr. Neil Chaturvedi for their outstanding leadership as interim dean and associate dean over the past year. Their wisdom and heartfelt dedication to the faculty, staff, and students have left CLASS in an excellent position to build on its strengths and explore areas for growth.

Over the coming weeks and months, I hope to meet all of you and learn your Cal Poly Pomona story. To kickoff that process, you'll soon receive an invitation from Cynthia Perez for an informal social on Wednesday, June 12 at 1:00. If you are on campus that day, I hope to see you there! If you aren't on campus, please know that we'll have additional informal meet and greet events once the semester is underway. I look forward to seeing you next week, or in August.

Kind regards,

Camu
