DIGITAL HUMANITIES CONSORTIUM (DHC)
STUDENT FELLOWS

For Academic Year 2026-2027, the CPP Digital Humanities Consortium (DHC) seeks two Student Fellows who have completed Digital Humanities coursework or club work here at Cal Poly Pomona.

The DHC@CPP is establishing a hub for aligning efforts and resources. The DHC also creates unique programming: hosting experts and pedagogical events, showcasing student-produced content, and providing a platform for student and faculty development in DH. We understand Digital Humanities to be an interdisciplinary field that treats technology as simultaneously a tool for and subject of humanistic inquiry. DH practices range from GIS to digitization; computational methodologies; and studying the impact of technology on humanity, from artificial intelligence, algorithmic biases, media analysis, to (mis)information. DH prioritizes public engagement and employs novel avenues for communicating scholarship, including websites, podcasts, social networks, and video-sharing.

Seeking students who are patient, organized, and effective communicators who can work with faculty to support student research and learning.

Desired skills may include video and audio recording, content creation, editing and post-production especially in Audacity, Camtasia, Capcut, and/or Adobe products. May include Story Maps ArcGIS, GIS, Google Earth/Google Maps. May include background with HTML, editing CPP websites (with Cascade), or other programming or graphic design experiences.

Responsibilities include the following:
- Assist in coordinating programming from pitch to implementation. As a member of our Steering Committee, help us brainstorm programming and services to benefit the CPP DH community.
- Serve as student experts on topics from technology, marketing, research, and more.
- Plan workshops, visit classrooms to discuss DH skills and/or experiences, hold office hours.
- Marketing, outreach.

Workload expected to be approximately 4 hours per week ($25/hour) for 15 weeks. A 1-unit course will facilitate coordination and time management. In applying please be mindful of other demands on your time, especially if working for Cal Poly Pomona with constraints on the number of hours you can work.

Application deadline for Student Fellows is Monday April 27th at 11:59pm.

Applications must be submitted on Kronos: https://secure6.saashr.com/ta/6041387.careers?CareersSearch

(1) a current resume, highlighting in bold font experiences related to Digital Humanities, past work related to creating or leading systems (organizations, programs, event planning, websites) and
(2) a 500-800 word essay clarifying background in DH and the events or projects you're interested in working on for the DHC.
(3) Arrange for a letter of recommendation of approximately 500 words from a university faculty member familiar with applicant's background, skills, and potential, to be e-mailed to the DHC (dhc@cpp.edu).

For more information on the DHC and previous Student Fellows, see our website: https://www.cpp.edu/dhc/.
Or find us on YouTube, Instagram, and LinkedIn.