I. Catalog Description

Catalog Description

This course examines the unique social and cultural aspects of family structures from the perspective of American ethnic groups. Using an interdisciplinary framework, this course explores the historical and contemporary formations of American ethnic families shaped within social, cultural and environmental contexts. Topics include the effects of im/migration processes and policies on families, non-traditional families, demographic characteristics, cultural retentions and transmissions, inter/intra ethnic and inter-generational issues, and the impacts of ethnicity and family structures on educational attainment.

II. Required Coursework and Background

Prerequisite(s): Completion of all Area A courses and all lower division Area D (sub-areas 1,2, and 3)

Corequisite(s):

Pre or Corequisite(s):

Concurrent:

III. Expected Outcomes

List the knowledge, skills, or abilities which students should possess upon completing the course.*

The course enables students to critically assess the historical development of ethnic families in the U.S. The topic is ideally suited for GE students as it affords them the opportunity to integrate historical, comparative and sociological approaches learned in the humanities and social sciences and apply them to the complex phenomenon of ethnic family identification, group relations, status and power.

By completing the requirements of this course satisfactorily, students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate familiarity with the scholarly literature on theories of racial/ethnic family identity, formation, and reproduction.
2. Synthesize the construction of ethnic family identities in their historical, political, social and cross cultural contexts.
3. Explain how ethnic family identities are tied to status and opportunity in the U.S. and in other societies.
4. Identify core values and traditions in the familial experience of ethnic groups, and to examine how these values are also transformative due to global and local forces.
5. Analyze representations of ethnic family identities in U.S. literature, arts, law and social sciences, and compare these with other cultures' understanding of similarly defined people.
6. Refine reading, writing, critical thinking, synthesizing and debating skills.
7. Examine both inter and intra-ethnic cultural perspectives on family as well as intergenerational issues.

Course Learning Outcome	PO#1: Apply interdisciplinary concepts, theories, and methods in the fields of Ethnic and Gender Studies	PO#2: Analyze hist& contemp. U.S. ethnic, racial, and gendered grps from cross cultural and global perspectives	PO#3: Engage in a variety of scholarly and community based social practices	PO#4: Demonstrate mastery of skills essential for career development & life-long learning, incl. critical thinking & problem-solving skills	PO#5: Demonstrate mastery of skills essential for pre-teaching incl. hist. knowledge of ed. issues & diverse pedagogical practices

The Ethnic and Women's Studies Department is dedicated to a critical analysis of society through the lens of race, ethnicity, class, gender, sexuality, and other forms of marginalization. We examine social inequalities in the U.S. shaped by historical, political, social, and global economic forces. This course examines the intersection of race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, dis/ability, age, religion in ethnic families. The EWS program learning outcomes, students learning outcomes, and this course's specific learning outcomes all align with the goals and objectives of the GEMS major.

Explain how the course meets the description of the GE SubArea (s). Please select appropriate outcomes according to the GE Area/SLO mapping.

As an upper-division synthesis course areas D4, students will have the opportunity to synthesize their interdisciplinary learning by choosing themes from the humanities, arts, and social sciences, conducting independent research, and connecting to study of ethnic families. Student will integrate expressive aspects of culture, literary and/or artistic works, with social and historical concepts, to further examine these topics.

1) Include readings from original primary/historical sources, as opposed to only secondary sources.

The class research paper/projects must include analysis and interpretation of primary and secondary sources.

2) Promote original and critical thinking in writing and/or discussion.

The course will critically evaluate the literature and present original ideas and personal connections.

3) Focus attention on understanding the interrelationships among the disciplines and their applications.

Students will study the role and value of interdisciplinary learning and writing in various course readings as applied to understanding of ethnic families.

4) Examine ideas and issues covered in this area in deeper and/or broader more integrative ways.

Projects/research papers must integrate EWS themes across area C.

5) Encourage synthetic-creative thinking in order to identify problems, understand broader implications and construct original ideas:

Part of the research paper/project is also a creative visual representation of the project in which students will synthesize main ideas and evidence of their research on ethnic families.

6) Identify and evaluate assumptions and limitations of ideas and models:

In their research and evaluation of literature students will identify and critically evaluate authors' main ideas and models.

7) Develop written and oral communication skills appropriate for an upper division course.

8) Provide student work for assessment of the student's understanding of the required educational objectives in this subarea or in this course.

Students will demonstrate their learning in their essay exams, research papers projects, oral presentations, and visual representations.

Describe how these outcomes relate to the associated GE Learning Outcomes listed below.*

This course introduces theoretical perspectives and nonwestern approaches for studying gender, ethnicity, gender and families. It also include the study of sexual orientation and includes substantive materials by and/or about African Americans, Natives Americans, Asian Pacific Islanders, Chicanos/Latinos and white Americans. And finally, the course addresses intra-cultural as well as inter-cultural differences and commonalities between groups with respect to ethnicity, race, gender and family formations.

1a: Write effectively for various audiences.

Course requires multiple writing assignments including essay exams and peer edited research paper. Students will also complete several reading responses and film analysis. (Course SLO #1, 3, 4 5, 7,; PO#1, 2,)

Describe the type(s) of method(s) that are required or recommended for the instruction of this course (lectures, demonstrations, etc.). Include any method that is essential to the course, such as the use of particular tools or software.

Instructional Methods*

A variety of instructional methods will be used to support student achievement of the course outcomes. These methods include:

1. Lecture/discussion and small group discussion. Students are expected to attend class regularly, and to be prepared to discuss the assigned readings and course topics in large and small groups.
2. Group Presentations. Students will contribute to the course with classroom group presentations.
3. Online activities. Students will contribute to the course with online activities and discussion board.
4. LMS (Blackboard). If a LMS is used, student will be expected to check the site regularly, contribute to online discussions, get course information and submit course work through the site.
5. Guest speakers.

IX. Evaluation of OutcomesDescribe the methods to be used to evaluate students' learning, i.e. written exams, term papers, projects, participation, quizzes, attendance, etc.*

1. Essay Exam (mid-term and final) that demonstrates the students' ability to understand the required course readings and in-class content.
2. Research paper that demonstrates the student's synthesis and analysis of topics related to the course.
3. Group Project that explores particular themes in the course either within a U.S. context.
4. Class participation.

Describe the meaningful writing assignments to be included.*

Students will submit a rough draft of their social location paper for peer editing and instructor feedback. Student will submit final draft.
