

Academic Senate Staff Report – February 15, 2023

Black History Month is an annual celebration of achievements by African Americans and a time for recognizing their central role in U.S. history. Learn more about the events CPP is offering during Black History Month.

Since 1986, the University Library's Golden Leaves Author Award has celebrated campus community members (faculty, staff, students, alumni, and retirees) who have authored or edited a book.

This year's ceremony will be held in April, so please tell all interested campus community members to complete a nomination form and email it to library@cpp.edu before Wednesday March 1 to be recognized. Learn more about the Golden Leaves Author Awards Here.

The Dining with Broncos program provides a space for alumni and students to connect over a meal. Share this opportunity with anyone who wants to sign up to attend a free dinner! The event is hosted by a CPP alumni interested in mentoring students and giving back. They will have an opportunity to ask career related questions, expand their network, prepare for life after college and more! Learn More about Dining with Broncos Here.

We are a little less than ONE MONTH to the March 2 deadline, so the time is now to amplify all the great scholarships we have for our CPP students, especially the ones that apply to your specific colleges and areas. The CPP Scholarships are offered by various colleges, departments, clubs, organizations and community members throughout the University. To apply, visit the Bronco Scholarship Portal (BSP) and complete the general application.

The application process for students is simple and fast. Based on university and application data, students are automatically matched to scholarships for which they are eligible. Selection of recipients is made by scholarship committees typically composed of university faculty and/or staff from the academic program or campus organization most closely affiliated with the scholarship.
