Don't Just Learn It.

LIVE IT

Run a restaurant. Empower young learners. Explore thriving ecosystems in our Biotrek outdoor learning labs. Here, the world is your classroom. We call it The CPP Polytechnic Experience (PolyX), and it leads to a higher level of know-how and lived-in experience that top employers seek and communities count on.

So go ahead, tackle geological mapping in the Mojave Desert. Design costumes and soundscapes for a full-fledged theatrical production. Have an "Aha!" moment — or two, or 10.

Bring Your Talents to Bloom

Connect with peers from across every discipline as you design, build and decorate a float for Pasadena's iconic Rose Parade on New Year's Day.

Forge Connections Beyond Campus

From Disney and Deloitte to Microsoft, USDA and the Smithsonian, you'll have access to internships that can take you just about anywhere.

Calling All Future Lawmakers

Participate in our Judicial Internship program and see the ins and outs of the judicial system on the ground floor at the Pomona Courthouse.

Take Learning Beyond the

With programs like Bronco Motorsports and the Liquid Rocket Lab, you'll have the chance to put engineering theory into action — designing, building and testing your creations to compete at an international level.

Short-term Commitment. Long-term Impact.

The moment you become a Bronco, you're eligible for Micro-Internship roles that offer paid professional assignments ranging from 5–40 hours of work. Ideal for students balancing their education with work and family obligations, these opportunities flex for any schedule and help you build your network.
