

Reasonable Accommodations

Every reasonable effort should be made to allow members of the University community to observe their religious holidays without academic penalty. Campus community members should be sensitive to religious observances in the construction of class schedules, syllabi, campus events, and work schedules and also be willing to make reasonable accommodations.

Absence from classes or examinations for religious reasons does not relieve students from responsibility for any part of the course work required during the period of absence. Students who expect to miss classes, examinations, or other assignments as a consequence of their religious observance shall be provided with a reasonable alternative opportunity to complete such academic responsibilities, provided it does not create an unreasonable burden upon the University. It is the obligation of the student to provide faculty with reasonable notice of the dates of major religious holidays on which they will be absent.